

April 2020 Highlights

- PrimeXM has registered a total of $910.86 billion in monthly trading volume in April across the 3 major data centres (LD4, NY4 and TY3)
- The Average Daily Volume in April was $41.40 billion compared to ADV of $48,22 billion in March, this represents 14.14% MoM decline.
- The total number of trades in April also decreased in comparison to record activity in March. Despite the Easter Holidays total number of transactions was strong at an average of 1.42 million/day
- The strongest Data Centre remains London (LD4) with 73% of traded volume. NY4 has taken over TY3 on ADV with $6.31 billion which represents a 1.86% MoM increase, despite an overall decline in ADV figures in the other 2 locations.
- XAUUSD slid down to 4th position from its top spot in March, due to disruption of the supply chain of the physical commodity. Liquidity became thinner, spreads became wider and margin requirements increased, as a result trading volume in Spot Gold fell over 60% to $88.74 billion.
- EURUSD took top position in April (17.92% of all volume) and major US indices picked up in volumes due to volatility in Stock markets
